Too Many Cooks

Spiled Bonus Broth

With Conflicting Aims

WASHINGTON — The bonus is dead for this session.

This does not mean that its ghost is laid. Far from it. There will be plenty of warring over the issue before the final gavels drop.

But these maneuvers will be chiefly political gestures. Privately, the bonus chieftains admit that they have shot their bolt and that their baby is all washed up for this year.

Underlying reason for this is identical with that which caused them to lose their campaign—too many cooks. A post-mortem analysis of the pre-bonus tactics shows that on every step they played into the hands of the opposition.

To begin with there was no unity among the bonusers. The American Legion backed the Vinson bill. The Veterans of Foreign Wars clamored for the Patman measure.

Whether the Vinson bill, which is conservative blind financing provision, could have been put through the Senate over the President's veto is debatable. But it is significant that Administration leaders were severely much relieved when the currency-inflationary Patman bill was enacted instead of its rival measure.

Another thing that hampered the bonus cause was the fact that there were too many personal horses being ridden under its colors.

The currency inflationists used the issue for their ends. Kingfish Huey worked the bonus for all it was worth in behalf of his anti-administration crusade. His filibuster to prevent the Senate from inviting the President to read his veto message was pelted with abuse and offended bonusites as well as foes.

And Father Coughlin's antics did not help. In fact, the radio priest's attack on Senator Bob Bulkley of Ohio cost the bonus forces a possible vote. Bulkley was wavering on the issue and veterans' lobbyists had high hopes of winning him over, when Coughlin upset the apple-cart by denouncing him in his Toledo speech. Out of self-respect Bulkley couldn't do anything else but refuse to yield.

The bonus will be paid before it is due. But it will be in spite of its tub-thumping champions in and out of Congress.

Soviet Society

Social occasions at the Soviet Embassy are the most sumptuous in Washington. Champagne flows like water. Caviar is unlimited. The most famous stars of the Metropolitan Opera are brought down from New York. Over everything glistens the red and gold decorations installed during the heyday of the Czar.

Washington society dopesters estimate that musicals at the Soviet Embassy cost around $3,000 a night. But members of the Embassy staff live simply.

The other day a demure lady appeared at the pattern counter of a Washington department store, in broken English: "I want a picture of a nightgown." They brought her the design of a night gown.

"No, I want a night dress, a dress you wear at night—you know, for parties."

"Oh, you mean an evening gown?"

"Yes, that is it."

So they brought her the design of an evening gown, a pattern which she eventually bought for 25 cents. Then she bought material for the gown, at about four

HOME IS CLEARED FOR BOY'S RETURN

Parents of Tacoma Youth Removed Three Children; Report Uncle Ready to Pay $200,000 Ransom; Today Is Final of Five

TACOMA, Wash., May 29—Little George Philip Weyerhaeuser may come home today.

This was the fifth—and last-day specified by the "egoist," the unknown criminal who last Friday abducted the nine-year-old curly-haired heir to the Weyerhaeuser lumber fortune for $200,000 ransom.

The money is ready, but whether the child's parents have established a successful contact—at the zero hour—with the "egoist" remained a riddle. Silence prevailed at the Weyerhaeuser home.

Uncle Is Ready?

A reliable report, however, had F. Rodman Titcomb, uncle of the kidnapped youth, waiting to hand over the $200,000 to the "egoist" at some remote spot far from the view of department of justice agents and other peace officials.

Titcomb sped away from the Weyerhaeuser home late yesterday in an automobile. He was accompanied by the parents. The other three Weyerhaeuser children are at the Tacoma home. The house was believed cleared for the return of George.

Once the "egoist" grabs the money and the child is returned the hunt is on!

The federal "G-Men" are set to open another great manhunt, determined that the perpetrator of the "worst crime since the Lindbergh case" shall meet the fate of "snatchers" in the Bremer, Urschel and other recent cases.

Much Excitement

Although the stage was believed virtually set for a delivery of "cash for the child," the case has been marked with many exciting moments during the past 24 hours.

GAS COMPANY TO FILE RATE

Disgusted At Prolonged Controversy In Chillicothe; Moves to P. U. C.

CHILLICOTHE, May 29—Indications today were that the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.'s rate offer made here several weeks ago will be taken to the state utilities commission as a result of council's refusal to act on the proposal.

The meeting this week marked the "deadline" for action so Hiram M. Jay, district manager, has recommended to his headquarters in Columbus that the rate be filed with the utilities commission.

Mr. Jay was quoted as saying the company would ask higher rates from the commission than it had asked of council in order to offset engineering and legal expense.

The schedule to be filed will be the same as that asked for Jackson, Wellston, Oak Hill, Coalton, McArthur and Hamden.

The first four years of the rate offered are considered almost the same as that now in effect but the fifth year will be higher.

Ireland was a member of the Scioto Country club, the Athletic Club and the Elks.

Although Circleville council has been expecting the gas company to offer a new rate here nothing has been done to date.

The present rate is practically the same as that Chillicothe is paying.

MEN'S CLUB TRIAL ENDS IN MISTRIAL

A large number of members of the Methodist Men's club enjoyed a mock trial Tuesday evening with Will G. Hamilton suing Harold Grant for $50,000 for alienation of affections of his wife.

Joe Adkins, Jr. was attorney for the plaintiff and William Ratcliff for the defendant with Carl D. Bennett as the judge.

Just as the jury was ready to announce its finding a mistrial was created when "Trizie," Hamilton's "wife," returned home and all was forgiven. The "wife" was Charles Owens.

The trial followed a splendid supper served by ladies of the church.

REPORT REDFERN, AVIATOR, LIVING

WASHINGTON, May 29—Hopes that Paul Redfern, Georgia aviator who disappeared eight years ago while attempting a non-stop flight from Brunswick, Ga. to Brazil, may still be living were revived today following receipt of a dispatch at the state department that he had been seen alive near Netherlands.

The "informant," Park said, offered to lead a rescue party if arrangements were made before June 14.

A full report was expected from Park this week.

THIEF THROWS BOX OF PEPPER, STEALS $1,400 FROM GROCER

WORCESTER, Mass., May 29—Flinging a box of pepper into the eyes of Frank Rex, grocer, a thief early today grabbed a cardboard box containing $4,000 and fled.

HEART ATTACK TAKES LIFE OF BILLY IRELAND

Wife Finds Noted Cartoonist Dead in Bed; Made "Passing Show"

DISPATCH EMPLOYEE

Host of Friends Here Shocked by Death

William A. "Billy" Ireland, 55, cartoonist for the Columbus Dispatch for 25 years and author of "The Passing Show," one of the most-read newspaper features in the nation, was found dead in bed at his home, 264 Woodland-ave, Columbus, Wednesday morning by his wife, Sayre Ireland.

Mr. Ireland died after a heart attack, a physician reported.

He had worked in his office high in the Dispatch building part of Tuesday and was in excellent spirits and apparently in good health.

Friends Shocked

His death is a shock to his hundreds of friends here and in Pickaway-co, many of whom were intimate.

Mr. Ireland was a native of Chillicothe. He removed to Columbus 36 years ago.

The cartoonist, whose "true to life" drawings and sketches have made him famous, was a frequent visitor in Circleville. He has attended several parties at the Pickaway Country club and has made a number of friendly visits in the homes of city and county residents.

Local Scene: Private

Circleville and Pickaway-co have often been sketched in his page. The annual Pumpkin Show never failed to receive mention, the halloween decorations have often been shown, W. E. Crist's big dog has "made" the page, and Ted Lewis has been given a number of "breaks" by Mr. Ireland. Many of the county's farmers, those who were first on the market with some kind of produce, or found a freak among their products, were given mention in cartoon and story in Mr. Ireland's page.

The meeting this week marked the "deadline" for action so Hiram M. Jay, district manager, has recommended to his headquarters in Columbus that the rate be filed with the utilities commission.

As the train went over the hill Charles Barker, fireman, jumped. He was cut and bruised.

NEST IS BLAMED FOR CHURCH FIRE

SOLDIERS FIELD BARS COUGHLIN

CHICAGO, May 29—By a ruling of the Chicago Park commission the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit will not be permitted to hold a meeting at Soldier field June 12 in behalf of his national union for social justice.

A unanimous vote against granting of a permit was cast by the board after President Robert J. Dunham asked that park facilities not be used "for the dissemination of propaganda upon political and economic subjects of a controversial nature."

More than 120 firemen battled the fire. They were aided by Rev. Alfred Stibb, acting pastor, and Rev. Raymond Kinz, who rescued valuable sacred vessels and vestments from the burning building.

Fire Chief E. Welch was injured while fighting the stubborn conflagration. Welch suffered a severe shock when a high tension wire snapped and fell into a pool of water in which the fire chief was standing.

MARKET AGAIN IS UNSETLED

Utilities, Rails In Demand with Commodities Weak In Early Trading

NEW YORK, May 29—Speculative markets were again unsettled today by the scrapping of the NRA but displayed better support after yesterday's drastic reactions.

Stocks showed early losses running to more than $2 a share and then firmed up. Utilities and rails were in demand and performed better than the rest of the list.

Oils, coppers and industrials were heavy. Trading was moderately active.

Commodities put in another weak performance. Cotton fell nearly a dollar a bale and silver was nearly a cent an ounce.

Bonds were generally steady while foreign currencies were quiet awaiting the outcome of the French crisis.

Merry Middle Ages

The Middle ages, says a noted critic, though it has become the fashion with those who know nothing about them to represent them as ages of gloom, were probably the merriest time of this world's history.

Time—so valuable to every one of us—is especially conserved for the knitter in this unusually attractive jiffy-knit blouse. Big needles—a lacy stitch and the result is a blouse done in no time. And what none of us object to, it takes little wool to make it. The tied yoke is all in one with the sleeves which, of course, simplifies the making of it. Another feature is that the top of the blouse is really a straight line onto which the yoke is attached. The jabot effect is a very flattering style.

MEMORIAL DAY

IT IS the custom on this day to honor the Nation's warrior dead. It is equally the custom to honor those veterans who are still among us, but whose ranks are appreciably thinner each year. There are not many left who fought at Shiloh and Vicksburg, who climbed the heights of Lookout Mountain and marched with Sherman to the sea, who endured the bitter Virginia campaigns and saw the sword finally sheathed at Appomattox. Some day the Grand Army of the Republic will be no more, but this day will always keep its memory fresh.

Time flies. The years that are encompassed by the lives of these men in blue have seen other wars and other veterans fall into step with them and other graves decorated with tiny flags. These were men who fought and men who died in Cuba and in the Philippines and their sons who passed through the ordeal of fire at St. Mihiel and in Belleau Wood. Three generations of soldiers and heroes. Three generations of honored dead.

So Memorial Day has assumed greater breadth and meaning. It should become more sacred to the Nation as the years pass. For without the courage and sacrifice which the day commemorates, America would not have been preserved and elevated to its present greatness.

FUTURE FARM MARKETS

A PREDICTION that the country's population is likely to begin to decline at the end of the next ten years was made by Dr. C. E. Baker of the bureau of agricultural economics at Washington.

Though the nation's birth rate had been declining for more than a century, Dr. Baker said, the actual number of births did not start downward until 1921. The decline was from nearly 3,000,000 births in that year to about 2,300,000 in 1934.

Should the decline in births continue at the pre-depression rate, the population "will increase slowly for about ten years, when there will be perhaps 5,000,000 more people than now," he continued, "and soon after, decline, provided there is no increase in immigration."

Meanwhile, the number of old persons would increase by about one-third each decade.

There are now about 10 per cent fewer young children in the United States than there were five years ago, and about 17 per cent more persons over 65 years of age, Dr. Baker said. This, he went on, indicates that a population of more adults and fewer young persons is in prospect if immigration bars are maintained.

He said today that in his analysis of population and birth figures "three profound implications for agriculture" indicated the following:

1. A stationary population will require no increase in food supply unless consumption per capita increases. Aggregate food consumption per person has not increased for a third of a century at least, and the trend for a decade has been slightly downward, traceable in part to more people being engaged in indoor work. A declining population, which is impending unless the downward trend of birth is reversed or immigration increases, will probably require a smaller food supply.

2. This decline would be accelerated by resumption of migration from farms to cities, for the proportion of the population having a low birth rate would then tend to increase.

3. On the other hand, if immigration from farms to cities is not resumed in pre-depression numbers, the trend would be toward a declining commercial consumption of farm products and an increasing non-commercial consumption.

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE by BELLE BURNS GROMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Following a whirlwind romance in Shanghai where he is attached to a U. S. gunboat, carefree Lieutenant Valentine Preston is married to Lia Gourine, an American southerner, whom he first observed while en route to say goodbye to Janice Edging, his childhood sweetheart, as she sailed for the Puget Sound Navy Yard where her father, Captain Edging has been assigned. Val left Janice in a huff, ran into Lia again, and learned she was alone in the world except for an aunt in Peiping and a father she had not seen in years who was exploring in the Gobi Desert. Their friendship blossomed into love and within a week they were married. When Val's orders arrive, transferring him to Puget Sound Navy Yard, Lia is bitterly disappointed at the thought of leaving China.

'NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY!'

CHAPTER 11

JAN WOULD be at the Navy Yard where Lia and he were bound. Well, Val was glad of that. She would be a good friend to Lia, would protect her from those others who might be less kind. Sue and Brad, too, were heading for Bremerton, except Sue seemed not to like Lia. Why, he hadn't been able to discover.

The girl stirred against his heart. "Always love me, won't you, Val?" she mimicked. She gave a little whining sigh, "I have no one but you, you know. No one else cares whether I live or die."

His arms tightened about her. "Of course I'll love and protect you, my dearest Always. No matter what comes."

Why had he said that? What could come? Even as he held her close in his arms he realized how little he knew of her. It was strange that Aunt Julia Lee had been so ready to wash her hands of her charge. Odd she would not return to Shanghai to see her niece before she sailed for home. Was there some hidden reason to cause that desperation look in Lia's eyes when she had discovered they must return to the States? A shiver ran along his spine. She had said it was a question of misfortune that frightened her. Well, he too had experienced an intuitive foreboding with the coming of these orders. And now a conviction persisted that the path ahead might not be so straight and smooth as he had planned.

There is an instant suspension of the sea that a black cloud against a red sunset warns of impending evil. And on the spring evening when Lieutenant Valentine Preston tears away his protesting bride on the voyage from the China station toward his first shore duty in the States, he stood at the liner's rail and stared across his wife's rebellious little head to where a rib-sailed, black junk stood out stark against a delimiting crimson sun.

But when the inevitable leave-taking arrived, she might have been a better sport. After all, she had been aware a naval officer must go where he is ordered. Before she finally came to her senses and ceased her bitter reproaches, his patience was worn paper thin. And though by the end of the voyage he became her ardent lover once more, the seas she had inflicted would not entirely heal. Now there were moments when he felt less under her spell—and a little distance removed from her.

On the tempestuous March morning when their liner landed then beside the Seattle docks, Val's eyes lighted to see Brad Norris' familiar figure waiting to welcome them. Himself only four months back from the Asiatic, Brad must have remembered how good it was to see a friendly face among the crowd on the dock. He helped them through the customs, assured them their house was ready a naval officer must go where he is ordered. Before she finally came to her senses and ceased her bitter reproaches, his patience was worn paper thin. And though by the end of the voyage he became her ardent lover once more, the seas she had inflicted would not entirely heal. Now there were moments when he felt less under her spell—and a little distance removed from her.

"Brad is meeting this ferry to take us to the commandant's tea," he said. "I suppose we shan't have a look at our quarters until later." She was silent a moment before she added, "You didn't find Sue distubin' herself to meet us this morning, did you? No, nor asking us to visit in her lovely new home until our house is settled."

"Now, listen, baby, you know perfectly well that when Brad telephoned the yard they told him we were not expected until the transport on the twenty-third. I neglected to radio him we would be on the Jefferson until yesterday; and by that time Sue had invited civilian guests from Seattle for the weekend; and couldn't very well change her plans."

"Don't get upset, dear. I was only remembering how many times I've heard Brad Norris say he nevab would have won his commission in the navy if you hadn't tutored him just every minute of the four year."

"Listen, Lia! I've asked you a dozen times not to say things like that."

"Well, it's true, isn't it? If he hadn't his navy training he'd never

PRACTICE SQUEEZE

PLAYING FOR top score in duplicate games better trains players to try for the last possible trick than does playing ordinary money games. This is plainly noted in cities like Cleveland and states like Maine, where unusual interest exists in team-of-four and pair contests. Here is a hand from Portland. Its declarer was not satisfied to play for 4-odd, as practice in obtaining the last possible trick he tried for a squeeze, which few money players might do.

North and South were vulnerable and the contract was 4-Spades. The opening lead was the K of diamonds, which was followed by the Ace. South ruffed. He led a low heart and dummy's K lost to the Ace. East led back a trump—a rather futile gesture towards preventing dummy from ruffing hearts when it held five trumps. From that time on South kept control of events. If any other procedure could have prevented what followed, the trump lead lost the opportunity.

South won the spade lead with his Q, then led his Ace to pick up the last two missing trumps.

Dummy's K of clubs was the sixth trick. Declare's last trump ruffed dummy's 8 of diamonds. The Ace of clubs won the next trick and dummy ruffed the 5 of clubs, in an attempt to squeeze opponents. At the tenth trick dummy's K of spades was led, leaving the holdings about the table as shown.

The fatal eleventh trick was won by dummy's last trump, forcing the remaining players to again discard. East let go one of his useless hearts. When East held his winning club declarer's useless club was discarded. West was squeezed if he let go the top diamond; dummy's 10 would win the next trick and the Q of hearts would win the eleventh trick for the declarer side. If West let go one of his hearts the Q would pick up West's J and the 10 would win the last trick. West had to take a chance that declarer might make a mistake, and West dropped the 9 of hearts, but South made no mistake. He made his 5-odd.

Many squeezes are preventable, provided the defenders anticipate what the declarer will attempt. Before Monday see if East can prevent the squeeze, when he wins the third trick with his Ace of hearts.

Effect of Air Conditioning On the Health of Workers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A GREAT DEAL of importance has been placed on the benefits of air conditioning to health. Experiments conducted in China and India, where high temperature and humidity are continuous by several large industries, resulted in the conclusion that continuous heat affected not only the physical condition, but also had some effect on the glands. Rest did not stay the effect of the climate on old residents in the area, but eight hours of comfortable temperature, either while working or resting, kept the subjects up to par.

The benefits of air conditioning to industry are too numerous to mention. One or two examples illustrate the point very well. In an air conditioned office employing 45 people, a reduction of 23 per cent in lost time took place the first year the system was installed. In another, the decrease in lost time was 8 per cent. In still a third, an office employing over 100 bookkeepers, the percentage of errors which increased greatly in the summer months, decreased after air conditioning was installed to the level of the rest of the year, and remained constant the year around.

MEMORIAL DAY

IT IS the custom on this day to honor the Nation's warrior dead. It is equally the custom to honor those veterans who are still among us, but whose ranks are appreciably thinner each year. There are not many left who fought at Shiloh and Vicksburg, who climbed the heights of Lookout Mountain and marched with Sherman to the sea, who endured the bitter Virginia campaigns and saw the sword finally sheathed at Appomattox. Some day the Grand Army of the Republic will be no more, but this day will always keep its memory fresh.

Time flies. The years that are embossed by the lives of these men in blue have seen other wars and other veterans fall into step with them and other graves decorated with tiny flags. These were men who fought and men who died in Cuba and in the Philippines and their sons who passed through the ordeal of fire at St. Mihiel and in Belleau Wood. Three generations of soldiers and heroes. Three generations of honored dead.

So Memorial Day has assumed greater breadth and meaning. It should become more sacred to the Nation as the years pass. For without the courage and sacrifice which the day commemorates, America would not have been preserved and elevated to its present greatness.

FUTURE FARM MARKETS

A PREDICTION that the country's population is likely to begin to decline at the end of the next ten years was made by Dr. C. E. Baker of the bureau of agricultural economics at Washington.

Though the nation's birth rate had been declining for more than a century, Dr. Baker said, the actual number of births did not start downward until 1921. The decline was from nearly 3,000,000 births in that year to about 2,300,000 in 1934.

Should the decline in births continue at the pre-depression rate, the population "will increase slowly for about ten years, when there will be perhaps 5,000,000 more people than now," he continued, "and, soon after, decline, provided there is no increase in immigration."

Meanwhile, the number of old persons would increase by about one-third each decade.

There are now about 10 per cent fewer young children in the United States than there were five years ago, and about 17 per cent more persons over 65 years of age, Dr. Baker said. This, he went on, indicates that a population of more adults and fewer young persons is in prospect if immigration bars are maintained.

He said today that in his analysis of population and birth figures "three profound implications for agriculture" indicated the following:

1. A stationary population will require no increase in food supply unless consumption per capita increases. Aggregate food consumption per person has not increased for a third of a century at least, and the trend for a decade has been slightly downward, traceable in part to more people being engaged in indoor work. A declining population, which is impending unless the downward trend of birth is reversed or immigration increases, will probably require a smaller food supply.

2. This decline would be accelerated by resumption of migration from farms to cities, for the proportion of the population having a low birth rate would then tend to increase.

3. On the other hand, if migration from farms to cities is not resumed in pre-depression numbers, the trend would be toward a declining commercial consumption of farm products and an increasing non-commercial consumption.

He should, he realized, have been warned by the scene on their wedding night when Lia had been inconsolable over the news that they must leave China. Instead he had ascribed it to an attack of nerves. And lest she should be lonely during his absences up river, he had seen to it that the young navy set should rally around her. After that it was only natural that Lia had plunged joyously into Shanghai's gay life.

Lia gazed back in desolation.

during these tantrums that he learned a hitherto unknown forbearance; and as he paced the deck alone he blamed himself for unwittingly adding to his wife's despair at being forced to exchange seductive Shanghai for a dull navy yard in the States.

A wind fresh with the tangy blend of fir and seaweed brushed Val's face. The ferry swung into a narrow passage and the young man peered from beneath the brim of his uniform cap to glimpse the tenebrous blur of forest-clad bluffs rising from the beach on either shore. Here and there the lamp in a lonely farm house made a faint star among the trees. Ahead, the loom of Bremerton's light lowered under a bank of murky clouds.

Val shivered against his side and glanced down to see her peering at him from the circle of her silver fox coat collar. Her warm loveliness stood out in sharp relief against the bleak atmosphere of the cliff-draped dock. Lord, but she was pretty. He liked the new hat like an absurd brown muffin, that cocked rakishly over her dark, up-tilted eyes. He cupped her soft chin in the palm of his hand and tipped up her face to kiss the dimple at the corner of her mouth.

"If Brad is meeting this ferry to take us to the commandant's tea," she said, "I suppose we shan't have a look at our quarters until later." Effect of Air Conditioning On the Health of Workers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A GREAT DEAL of importance has been placed on the benefits of air conditioning to health. Experiments conducted in China and India, where high temperature and humidity are continuous, resulted in the conclusion that continuous heat affected not only the physical condition, but also had some effect on the glands. Rest did not stay the effect of the climate on old residents in the area, strength is not needed to resist excessive temperatures, but for definite relief or cure of disease the only positive proof we have is in connection with pollen hay fever or asthma.

The spray or filter removing pollen from the air gives the patient partial or complete relief so long as he remains in the conditioned area.

Benefits Numerous

The benefits of air conditioning to industry are too numerous to mention. One or two examples illustrate the point very well. In an air conditioned office employing 45 people, a reduction of 23 per cent in lost time took place the first year the system was installed. In another, the decrease in lost time was 50 per cent. In still a third, an office employing over 100 bookkeepers, the percentage of errors which increased greatly in the summer months, decreased after air conditioning was installed to the level of the rest of the year, and remained constant the year around.

In a factory installing an air conditioning system, the defective products were reduced from 4 per cent to 1 per cent. Before air conditioning for 75 of the summer days, an average of 50 girls per day became sick or fatigued and quit at noon. After air conditioning only five girls were out half-days during the 75 days. After the air conditioning system was installed 100 fewer girls left during the summer for lighter, cooler work, greatly reducing the training expense. In this latter case the company, paying all possible cost to air conditioning, estimated an actual saving of approximately $24,000 per year. Air conditioning in factories has proved so successful that some of them are being erected now without any windows or openings except doors, the artificial light furnishing the sunlight requirements and air conditioning the required temperatures.

Other suggestions are that as an even distribution of the blood is concentrated at surface, will deprive the heart, stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs of their normal blood supply and impair their efficiency. We do know the heart must work harder to send more blood to the surface of the body, causing a definite strain. It is thought the feeling of lassitude and weariness experienced in warm weather is due to an insufficient supply of blood to the brain. To these conditions are attributed heat stroke and prostration. And summer cramps are attributed to the fact that excessive perspiration deprives the body of necessary salts.

It is fair to assume that in any disease the patient's chance of recovery will be much better if his temperature, either while working or resting, kept the subjects up to par.

Apparently the recent sentencing of several kidnapers to death or long imprisonment has not discouraged all with similar inclinations.

The results of the recent attacks upon kidnapers are impressive. But there is still much to do. The G-men who have been so successful in making it hot for kidnapers who thought they were too smart for the law, are offered a new challenge. May they score again and speedily!

PICKAWAY DAIRY DEFEATS 1934 CHAMPIONS, 10 TO 4

EIGHT RUNS IN FIFTH MARGIN; GAME TONIGHT

Callahan On Hill for Winners; Errors, Help Downfall of Circleville Oils

The Circleville Oils, defending their 1934 championship, took it on the nose at the hands of Joe Glitt's Pickaway Dairy team Tuesday evening by an 10-4 score.

Eddie Callahan and Bob Maloney mixed on the mound with Maloney being the victim of some poor support. One play in the fifth inning resulted in three runs when a base was left uncovered.

The Dairy Crew scored a run in the first inning on Fausnaugh's triple and Eby's single.

No scoring was then recorded until the fifth when the Dairies ran the bases with ease scoring eight markers. Zelmer was safe on an error, Callahan doubled, Roby singled, Radcliff grounded into the field but a throw to retire fisted first base uncovered when some strategy failed to work and three runners went across the plate. More hits and errors were accumulated until eight runs were scored.

The Oils tallied two in the fifth on hits by Butler, D. Robinson and E. Radcliff and two more in the ninth on a walk to Imler, Butler's double and B. Radcliff's single.

The Dairies had scored their tenth run in the eighth. The Dairies led by Byron Eby.

ROSS CLAIMS TITLE AFTER HOT CONTEST

Decision Unanimous Against McLarnin Though Latter Wins High Praise

NEW YORK, May 29.—You've got to write it off to my boyish enthusiasm but for five minutes last night I stood in the corner of a defeated fighter and tried to shake the hand of Jimmy McLarnin who had just lost his last prize fight and, with it, the welterweight championship of the world.

The winner and restored champion was Barney Ross, of Chicago, at the end of the greatest fifteen rounds these old eyes have ever beheld but one's interest in Mr. Ross, then and later, was bound to be somewhat restrained. After all, I was in line to suspect that he didn't see me.

He, in fact, will do all right without any help from anybody but that gallant man who stood and struggled for three minutes of the most dramatic last round ever produced in a New York ring—there was a man who knew how to die! He, in the words of the immortal Henley, had made the good fight; he had kept the faith.

But Referee Jack Dempsey and two judges had unanimously and rightly called the decision against him—and here, after a performance so absolutely fine that it filled the eye and gladdened the heart, he was through.

It was the third meeting of the pair, Ross taking the title the first time and McLarnin winning it back the second. The first fight was good, the second was better. This one topped them all. Apparently, the pair of them can keep this up forever.

PICKAWAY DAIRY DEFEATS 1934 CHAMPIONS, 10 TO 4

EIGHT RUNS IN FIFTH MARGIN; GAME TONIGHT

Callahan On Hill for Winners; Errors Help Downfall of Circleville Oils

The Circleville Oils, defending their 1934 championship, took it on the nose at the hands of Joe Glitt's Pickaway Dairy team Tuesday evening by an 10-4 score.

Eddie Callahan and Bob Maloney mixed on the mound with Maloney being the victim of some poor support. One play in the fifth inning resulted in three runs when a base was left uncovered.

The Dairy Crew scored a run in the first inning on Fausnaugh's triple and Eby's single.

No scoring was then recorded until the fifth when the Dairies ran the bases with ease scoring eight markers. Zelmer was safe on an error, Callahan doubled, Roby singled, Radcliff grounded into the field but a throw to retire found first base uncovered when some strategy failed to work and three runners went across the plate. More hits and errors were accumulated until eight runs were scored.

The Oils tallied two in the fifth on hits by Butler, D. Robinson and B. Radcliff and two more in the ninth on a walk to Imler, Butler's double and B. Radcliff's single.

The Dairies had scored their tenth run in the eighth.

The Dairies led by Byron Eby, who although a resident of Chillicothe works for the Weaver wholesale house and is eligible to play, promises to be plenty tough for the league. Callahan was wilder than usual Tuesday evening leaving five men but he also fanned five.

Robinson Only Veteran

When the Oils took the field only one member of last year's championship team, Dick Robinson, was in the lineup. Joe Barnes came later making it two.

Howe and Thompson umpired.

Tonight the schedule finds the Cities Service and Purina Chow teams tangling. Should they be rained out they will play Friday evening.

The standing:

Team	G	W	L	Pct.
Eshelman Feeds	1	1	0	.000
Pickaway Dairy	1	1	0	.000
Jones Specials	1	0	1	.000
Circleville Oil	1	0	1	.000
Cities Service	0	0	0	.000
Purina Chows	0	0	0	.000

Wednesday—Purina Chows vs. Cities Service.

Thursday—Decoration day—No league game.

Friday—Jones Specials vs. Circleville Oils.

All games starts promptly at 6:30.

PINCH HIT WINS

COLUMBUS, May 29—Their winning streak snapped, the Columbus Red Birds were to board a bus for their trip to Toledo where they met the Mud Hens tonight.

Yesterday's tilt went into the eleventh before it was decided 9 to 5 in favor of Kansas City when Pinch Hitter Carson clouted for the circuit with the bases loaded. Hal Epp, Bird outfielder, had sent the game into extra innings with his home run in the ninth to tie the score.

The Dairies had scored their tenth run in the eighth.

The Dairies led by Byron Eby,

FIGHT AGAINST POLLUTION OF RIVER STARTS

3 JUDGES ORDER MAN TO PRISON

COLUMBUS, May 29.—Three Franklin County judges today had found V. V. Tomlinson, 38, guilty of first degree murder in killing wreck in a freight train in Indiana in which several trappers were killed. They recommended mercy however, and Tomlinson will serve 15 to 30 years. He is the second convict of the crime. Herbert Lindgren, his stepfather, is now serving the term.

Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Spangler of Columbus spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Hattie K. and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiggins of Circleville were Monday guests of Mrs. Sarah Rehfelder.

Mrs. E. L. Hedges and daughter Dorothy spent the weekend with relatives in Circleville.

City authorities will be called upon to urge congressmen and senators for support to obtain allotments from the $1,800,000,000 work-relief fund of the federal government for the construction of purification plants.

A nine-point resolution, calling attention to river pollution as a menace to public health and the fact that a purification program would provide employment for hundreds of men, was being prepared for submission to Ohio river cities today. The resolution was adopted yesterday by the health committee of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

OHIO NEEDS MORE CONCRETE ROADS

CONCRETE for Safety on your holiday trip

ON your holiday trip can you keep on concrete all the way? You're lucky if you can! Concrete roads are swifter, safer, more comfortable, saving on gas, oil, tires and your car. They get the holiday parade through with fewer jams and delays. Your holiday is safer on concrete. Safer at night—obstacles stand out plainly in front of your headlights. No glossy surface glare to tire the eyes.

Safer in wet weather, too. Crowns are lower—always uniform. No tendency to slip off the side. The non-slippery surface provides better traction at any speed.

FIGHT AGAINST POLLUTION OF RIVER STARTS

Cincinnati Civics Groups to Include Six States in Their Campaign

CINCINNATI, May 29—The length and breadth of the Ohio river through six states was marked out as a battle ground today as Cincinnati civic organizations mapped out an intensive vigorous campaign calling upon all cities in the region to unite in a fight to free the river of sewage pollution.

The campaign will be waged in all Ohio river cities from Pittsburgh to Cairo and will reach into the states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois.

City authorities will be called upon to urge congressmen and senators for support to obtain allotments from the $4,800,000,000 work-relief fund of the federal government for the construction of purification plants.

A nine-point resolution, calling attention to river pollution as a menace to public health and the fact that a purification program would provide employment for hundreds of men, was being prepared for submission to Ohio river cities today. The resolution was adopted yesterday by the health committee of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

3 JUDGES ORDER MAN TO PRISON

COLUMBUS, May 29—Three Franklin-co judges today had found V. V. Tomlinson, 38, guilty of first degree murder in helping wreck a Pennsylvania train at Linden in which several trainmen were killed. They recommended mercy however and Tomlinson will serve a life term. He is the second convicted of the crime, Hubert Lindsey, his stepfather-in-law, also serving a life term.

What is Paint?

Two cans of paint on the outside look as near alike as two peas in a pod.

IT'S WHAT IS ON THE INSIDE THAT PROVES YOUR PAINT BAR GAIN!

Cheap paint—may save you a few cents on the gallon in first cost, but usually has low coverage capacity from 250 to 300 square feet two coats.

That's Why It Is More Economical and the pure materials which make it cover better, also make it wear longer.

NO OTHER BRAND no matter how high the price or how well and favorably known, will spread farther or wear longer. Why Pay More?
